GREDF Partners with City of Quincy and Adams County to Survey Businesses

Press Conference will be held Wednesday, June 19th at 9am in the Oakley-Lindsay Center

Quincy and Adams County, Illinois... The Great River Economic Development Foundation, in partnership with the City of Quincy and Adams County, has developed a Business Survey to gauge the current business environment in our region. The three organizations will hold a short press conference to unveil the survey tomorrow, Wednesday, June 19, 2013, at 9:00 am in the Oakley-Lindsay Center Quincy Room.

Marcel Wagner, GREDF president; Mayor Kyle Moore and Mike McLaughlin, member of the Adams County Board, will each make brief remarks.

"Economic development is not an endeavor of a single person or even a single organization. Successful economic development is a collaborative and aggressive process," says GREDF president Marcel Wagner. "That's why we're partnering with our City and County officials to get the feedback we need to help further improve the economic vitality of our region."

Paper copies of the survey, which will be distributed to the general public electronically, will be available at the press conference. For more information, contact Maggie Strong at GREDF, 217.223.4313 or 217.257.0721.
